For your meditation this Lord's Day:

“The point... is not simply that God ordinarily works through foolish means and therefore the church must do likewise. This is true. But we also need to see that the church is commissioned to disciple the nations and that God has promised to bless her work. The only means God has promised to bless are Word and sacrament. Other ministries that appear to be more attractive and effective not only detract from God's ordained means but also imply that we are wiser than God and that we do not trust his gracious provision. If the church is to be faithful, she must also be content with the means God has given to his church. And unless he sends a word of knowledge promising to bless the youth group, we need to continue with the ordinary means of Word and sacrament” (Darryl Hart, Recovering Mother Kirk, 122).

Where does justifying faith come from? “The Holy Spirit produces it in our hearts by the preaching of the gospel, and confirms it through our use of the holy sacraments.”
(Heidelberg Catechism Q/A 65; cf. Jn 3:5, Rom. 10:17, Matt. 28:19-20, 1 Cor. 10:16)
